Jonna grew up in the Mat-Su Valley and graduated from Colony High School. She especially enjoys speaking to middle schoolers about healthy relationships because she knows first-hand how impactful relationships can be, even at that early stage of life. Jonna and her husband met in 7th grade at Colony Middle School and have now been married for 11 years. The couple lived in Oceanside California for ten years while Jonna's husband served in the Marine Corps and she worked at Young Life, but Alaska was in their blood. They moved back over a year ago when Jonna took over the area director position at Young Life Mat-Su. She thoroughly enjoys advocating for her organization because she says it, "intentionally brings hope, love, and mentorship to teenagers in middle school, high school, and even teen moms."

Jonna and her husband have a son who turned one last Thanksgiving and a 12 year-old Golden Retriever named Dug. She is self-admittedly a "kid at heart" and enjoys going to Young Life camp in the summer, playing most any sport and being in the outdoors.
